

Ware it's at

We take stock of the trendy new spots filling the Warehouse District

By Emily Hiser Lobdell

September 12, 2007

Just north on Lake Street, fashionistas can get a brand new bag at Bess & Loie, an accessories shop that opened early this month. Owner Allyson Holleb named the boutique after her two fashionable grandmothers, and keeping with the grandmotherly theme, she keeps a well-stocked kitchen and several candy dishes scattered around the store so customers can ponder their purchases over snacks. Her goal is to feature lesser-known handbag designers, but Holleb does carry some familiar lines, such as Hayden-Harnett, Pagliei and Cynthia Rowley. Bess & Loie also sells men's bags, neckties and jewelry.